GUIDE TO GREEK LIFE

GEORGIA TECH 2016
Congratulations on your decision to come to Georgia Tech. You've already made one of the most important decisions of your life, and you've chosen one of the best institutions in the country. As leaders of the Greek community, we're excited about the potential in this year's incoming freshman class. During your time in college, you will have many exciting learning experiences, but none so complete, well-rounded, and long-remembered as that of being a member of a Greek organization. Even though you may have no intention of joining a Greek organization, it is worth your time and effort to go through the recruitment process in order to meet new people and learn more about the different facets of the Georgia Tech community as a whole.

As a potential member, we ask that you keep an open mind and base your decision on your personal opinions and not those of friends, relatives, other potential members, or stereotypes you may have heard or formed. Joining a fraternity or sorority is a lifelong decision that will be one of the most rewarding experiences of your life. There is a chapter for everyone, but what is right for your friends or family members may not be the right choice for you. Additionally, fraternities and sororities today are vastly different from stereotypes you may have seen or heard of in the past. Even from campus to campus, individual chapters carry a personality all their own, and it is up to you to choose the organization that best represents your ideals and values.

New members of Greek organizations enter a community of leaders, academic achievers, philanthropists, and a social circle of friends that is unmatched by any other experience. No matter what group you choose, the friendships you form will be lifelong. We encourage you to visit our website for more information about summer events and contact information. If you have any additional questions, feel free to contact us.
If you aren’t sure Greek Life is for you, or if you don’t even know what it is, keep this in mind: if you value academics, philanthropy, and leadership, and you are looking to form a close network of friends - the Greek community at Tech may be for you!

Not everyone thinks of “going Greek” when they come to Tech, based on what they heard or seen about Greek organizations, but there is more to Greek Life than what meets the eye. It is only once you participate in recruitment or start to meet Greek students at Tech that you realize whether or not Greek Life is for you. Always keep in mind there are over 50 chapters to choose from, each one is unique and has different values. Find the one that fits best for you, and you will begin the most well-rounded and memorable college experience possible.

A Few Notable Georgia Tech Greeks

Welcome to Georgia Tech! The time you spend at Tech will be exciting, filled with new experiences, friends, and knowledge. All aspects of your life can be enhanced if you set yourself up to make the most of the time you are here. Joining a fraternity or sorority is a great way to make new friends, develop leadership skills, serve the community, get involved on campus, and enhance your academic potential.

Greek life is a tradition at Georgia Tech that is over 125 years old. Fraternities are almost as old as Georgia Tech itself, dating back to 1888 with the founding of Alpha Tau Omega. Sororities have been at the heart of our advancement of women since women started attending Tech over 60 years ago. As a result of this heritage, over 23% of undergraduate students are members of fraternities and sororities.

Our Greek community is very involved in serving the Atlanta community. Tech Greeks donate countless hours and raise money to support local and national charities each year. Becoming involved on campus is also highly encouraged by the Greek community. Just as it is important for Greeks to give back to the surrounding community, it is just as important to give back to Tech as well.

The best thing about fraternity and sorority life at Tech is that you can do all of the above and still make good grades! All of our fraternities and sororities have study hours built in to their new member programs and many of the chapter houses have study rooms with computers, large tables for group work, and spaces to meet with tutors. Many Greek students also participate in our co-op program and intern with companies.

We encourage you to attend our Greek 101 session on the first day of FASET Orientation, ask questions, and explore membership in a fraternity or sorority. The 2016 Guide to Greek Life is merely an introduction to what we have to offer. Inside, you will find contact information for students who can answer some of your questions, and feel free to contact our office.

Share this information with your family and discuss the responsibilities and incredible benefits that can come through Greek life at Tech. Visit us online at www.greek.gatech.edu for more information, and you move into your residence hall room.

Congratulations again, and we look forward to seeing you soon!

Academics

The Greek community at Georgia Tech realizes that excelling in academics is the top priority of every student. Each Greek organization has its own unique way of encouraging and rewarding superior academic performance. Chapters, as well as the four Greek governing councils, sponsor various educational programs and awards.

Programs may include:
- time management and study skills seminars,
- scheduled study hours with free tutoring,
- organized study groups,
- and advice on courses and professors.

Order of Omega, a Greek honor society, also inspires Greeks to reach their highest potential by rewarding academic excellence.

As members of the Greek community, we stand firm in our dedication to good scholarship and believe that educational success at Georgia Tech prepares men and women for personal and professional success. Retention rates, graduation rates, and grade point averages are higher for Greeks.

A grade report for the Greek community is available on pages 70 and 71.

Leadership

The Greek community develops members by offering many executive board leadership positions - either in their individual chapter, or through a Greek governing council. Throughout your years in a fraternity or sorority, skills are gained through a variety of experiences. In addition to involvement within their chapters, Greek students learn leadership qualities through on-campus and co-op jobs or internships, and other student organizations.

Being involved in a Greek organization also allows you to network and increase your involvement on campus, and as a result, many leadership positions on Georgia Tech’s campus are held by members of the Greek community.

Philanthropy

Every national fraternity or sorority has a designated charity or philanthropy that they regularly sponsor. Each local Georgia Tech chapter participates in projects which support their national organization’s cause.

Every year, Greeks come together for large scale philanthropy projects such as St. Baldrick’s and the AIDS Walk. Greeks assist with many projects during Homecoming and Greek Week that range from planting flowers, to volunteering at homeless shelters and repairing local parks. In addition, Greeks at Georgia Tech host Habitat for Humanity Builds for families in need in the Atlanta Community. In the spring, Greeks participate in Dance Marathon and the American Cancer Society’s Relay for Life.

At Georgia Tech, Greeks feel it is important to contribute their time and efforts to their community, as everyone is able to learn and grow through serving others.

Athletics

Athletics are an integral part of Greek Life at Tech. Many chapters participate in Tech’s 20+ intramural sports programs offered throughout the year. Fraternities and sororities compete in their own league for the Greek championship, then advance to play in the school championship rounds. In addition to intramural sports, Greek chapters receive block-seating at all home football games. This guarantees you a seat in the same section of the stadium with others from your chapter, so you never have to worry about standing in line to get a seat!
Alumni

Greek organizations have been on Georgia Tech's campus for over 125 years. Since the first fraternity was chartered in 1888, thousands of young men and women have been initiated into Georgia Tech's numerous fraternities and sororities. Fraternity and sorority alumni stay active with their respective local and national chapters, as well as the Institute, long after they have completed their degrees at Tech. Although alumni support Georgia Tech and their chapters financially, they also act as mentors and serve as great examples for undergraduate members. Greek alumni demonstrate how fraternity or sorority association can equip its members with the skills to excel personally and professionally.

When you graduate, alumni networks generate valuable resources that can assist you in finding a great job and much more. Alumni networks reach far beyond individual chapters and across various geographies. Imagine how it will feel to be able to go anywhere in the United States (and even beyond) and have automatic connections through a fraternity or sorority!

Social

In addition to academic and leadership opportunities, Greek organizations provide a balance to the academic rigors of Georgia Tech with a full social schedule. Social events include:
- Semi-formals
- Formals
- Date Nights
- Parents and Family Weekends
- Alumni gatherings
- Step shows

Each of these events is organized and planned with enjoyment as well as safety in mind; each organization follows a responsible social policy laid out by Georgia Tech, our student governing boards, and national risk management policies.

Parents and Families: How You Can Help

A fraternity/sorority offers a wonderful support system that can help your student with everything from adjusting to the academic rigors of Georgia Tech to finding a “home away from home.” Upperclassmen in fraternities and sororities have been through many, if not all, of the situations that your student will experience as a student at Georgia Tech. Fraternity and sorority members can provide invaluable advice to help your student make good choices that will ensure their future success.

However, the active members of a chapter are not the only source of guidance. Most chapters have vast alumni networks that can open many doors to future opportunities. Many famous Tech graduates are alumni of fraternities and sororities at Georgia Tech.

If your student is considering “going Greek” remember that what you may have seen on television or in movies is very about misleading what being “Greek” really means. In addition, your time in college will be drastically different than what your student may experience. If you still have reservations with allowing your student to join a fraternity or sorority, contact the Office of Greek Affairs or the Parents Program Office.

As a parent or family member, there is a lot you can do for your student during their Greek experience. Deciding which organization to join can certainly produce excitement and a bit of anxiety. You can be there to counsel them through their decision:

- Check in with your student during the recruitment process.
- Talk with your student about all of their options to join, even if those options do not include their friends’ choices.
- Discuss reasons for joining the group: opportunity to engage in service/philanthropy, social support, impact on academics, etc.
- Consider the financial obligations of joining a fraternity/sorority.

If your student decides to join, you are encouraged to be involved in the chapter experience. Many parents and families choose to get involved in a variety of ways:

- Ask your student about their new brothers or sisters.
- Visit the chapter’s website and the official website of the fraternity/sorority headquarters.
- Review the fraternity/sorority mission, values, and tenants of membership.
- Encourage your student to take a leadership role in their chapter.
- Know the grade requirements for new and active members.
- Be supportive of your student if they do not receive a bid to join an organization. Encourage and remind them that there is plenty for them to get involved with at Georgia Tech!
- Attend Family Weekend events.
- Join or start a Parents Club.
- Encourage your student to take advantage of chapter resources, and scholarships.
- Encourage your student to attend educational programs in the chapter and on campus.
- Know the contact information for the chapter, and your student’s big brother/big sister.
- Attend Family Weekend events.
Information about the Interfraternity Council and its member chapters is available on page 44.

Q: How has your Greek affiliation made a positive impact on your Georgia Tech experience?

The greatest impact of being Greek is the mentorship that I was able to receive from other students of all ages. In a fraternity, I was surrounded by people younger and older than me and I found the relationships to be very rewarding. It was nice as a freshman to be able to look up to a 4th or 5th year and strive to accomplish the same things that older students had. Even now as an older brother in my chapter, I still find myself being able to learn from the new members.

Matteo Valles
Major: Mechanical Engineering

Q: How has your Greek affiliation helped you to become more involved in other activities at Georgia Tech?

Although I didn’t expect it, I quickly found that joining a Greek organization was an incredible resource for getting involved. I was fortunate that many of my fraternity brothers were involved in organizations across campus. They helped me to choose and pursue the organizations I wanted to get involved in. Going Greek has given me the opportunity to be involved alongside my fraternity brothers, which unquestionably has made the whole experience more enjoyable and meaningful.

Austin Schoech
Major: Civil Engineering

Q: What advice would you give to incoming freshmen?

I’d encourage every freshman to get involved as early and often as possible. For me, joining my fraternity really helped me hit the ground running when I got to Tech. From day one, I was informed about events and opportunities on campus that I wouldn’t have otherwise known about if I not gone Greek. These experiences helped me gain skills that I’ll carry with me throughout my career, and they also led to numerous friendships outside of my own chapter.

Travis Hanly
Major: Industrial Engineering
Q. How did your views of being Greek change from before you got to Tech to after you arrived on campus?

Before arriving to Tech, I had no idea what Greek life would be on campus. However, after arriving to school and witnessing first hand how strong the brotherhood was in my fraternity, I knew it was something I wanted to be apart of. My fraternity exhibits all of the same values I embody. Once you find an organization that becomes your new family on campus, there’s no greater feeling.

Jamal Johnson
Major: Business Administration

Q. How has being a part of an NPHC organization affected you as a Georgia Tech student?

Joining an NPHC organization has been a huge catalyst to my growth at Georgia Tech. It has taught me the importance of loving others regardless of our diverse background, leading by example in my community, and continuously working hard to leave a meaningful impact. It has also given me other opportunities to create new relationships and networks with many people in the Atlanta area.

Siham Adous
Major: Industrial and Systems Engineering

Q. How has your Greek affiliation affected your life here at Georgia Tech?

As an out of state student, coming to Tech and not knowing anyone was definitely a scary experience. By going Greek, I was immediately surrounded by a great group of women who not only made my transition into college easier, but also helped me get involved on campus.

Ashika Ganesh
Major: Computer Science

Q. What inspired you to join a Multicultural Greek organization?

At first the reason why I joined a fraternity was to make friends. However, what keeps me being part of Multicultural Fraternity is the pillars/values they follow. Being a part of a multicultural fraternity also allows me to represent my own culture and country.

Lee Eang
Major: Electrical Engineering

Q. How were you able to balance schoolwork with your involvement in the Greek community?

Balancing schoolwork with Greek Life is difficult but far from impossible. Yes, we go to Georgia Tech and life certainly revolves around academics, but if you make sure to give yourself time to preare adequately, you will still have plenty of time to enjoy yourself and do things out of the classroom. Everyone at Tech is smart, the other things you get involved with and passionate with are is what will set you apart.

Mohit Limdi
Major: Chemical Engineering

Q. What advice would you give to incoming freshmen?

Be yourself and don’t be afraid to have the college experience you want. Whether it is going Greek or not, as long as you put your whole heart into it.

Mijua Moua
Major: Business Administration
CPC Spotlight

Information about the Collegiate Panhellenic Council and its member chapters is available on page 17.

Q. How has Greek affiliation had a positive impact on your Georgia Tech experience?
Being a part of CPC has pushed me to be bolder in all my interactions with people, and bolder in my actions for myself, making me a stronger person and a better friend. The more involved I became within my chapter, the more satisfied I became with my Tech experience. I have become a more confident and compassionate individual because of my sisters, who are so encouraging and who support me just as much as I support them.

Paloma Zavala
Major: International Affairs

Q. What advice would you give to incoming freshmen?
Believe in yourself! Take every opportunity you are given and step outside your comfort zone. Never assume you aren’t qualified for a leadership role or job opportunity, and finally, surround yourself with people who make you better.

Emily Strickland
Major: Industrial Engineering

Q. How were you able to balance schoolwork with your involvement in the Greek community?
The Greek community has provided me a network of motivated, intelligent women who inspire me to be a better student every day. In addition, we have major-specific scholarship families in my chapter which have been an extremely helpful resource when it came to choosing classes, helping with my homework, and providing career advice.

Meredith Wolpert
Major: Business Administration

Q. How do your values align with the CPC community?
CPC highly values philanthropy and service, and I have really appreciated the encouragement and accountability built into the CPC community. It has also provided opportunities to grow and step up as a leader.

Julia Campbell
Major: Psychology

Our Council
Every woman who joins a Panhellenic sorority also becomes a member of the Collegiate Panhellenic Council (CPC). CPC is the governing body for ten sororities on Georgia Tech’s campus and unites all of its members regardless of affiliation. CPC and our members work to make the Greek community a positive influence on campus and in the community. Each member sorority has a delegate on the CPC governing board, which is led by seven Executive Board members. CPC is responsible for promoting scholarship, philanthropy, personal growth, safety, and campus involvement among all sorority members. CPC women strive to live by the Panhellenic Creed and embody high ideals in all that they do.

The Panhellenic Creed
We, as Undergraduate Members of women's fraternities, stand for good scholarship, for guarding of good health, for maintenance of fine standards, and for serving, to the best of our ability, our college community. Cooperation for furthering fraternity life, in harmony with its best possibilities, is the ideal that shall guide our fraternity activities.

We, as Fraternity Women, stand for service through the development of character inspired by the close contact and deep friendship of individual fraternity and Panhellenic life. The opportunity for wide and wise human service, through mutual respect and helpfulness, is the tenet by which we strive to live.

-From the National Panhellenic Conference

Formal Recruitment
Formal Recruitment is the process by which the seven National Panhellenic Conference sororities recruit new members. Every fall, CPC organizes Formal Recruitment by overseeing the invitation and bid matching process, establishing recruitment standards, and selecting Pi Chi’s - your Panhellenic recruitment counselors. In the next few pages we will explain the recruitment process to you and what a fun experience it will be!

CPC Formal Recruitment requires interested women to register on the CPC website. All seven National Panhellenic Conference sororities will receive each potential new member’s application.

A non-refundable application fee is charged to all registrants. The registration fee is $80 until August 1st. After that, the registration fee will increase to $90. Registration will remain open until 4:00PM on Thursday, August 18th.

Expectations of Joining a Sorority
Members of Panhellenic sororities must complete a number of requirements that vary between organizations in order to maintain their memberships. These requirements often include completion of a set number of philanthropy hours, weekly attendance at chapter-wide meetings, participation in formal recruitment prior to the start of the school year, on-time payment of chapter dues. Membership requirements are customized for each Chapter and exist in order to maintain Panhellenic’s history of strong and successful organizations.

By joining a sorority, you will gain an incredible support system of women who share your values. You will have access to unique academic resources, professional opportunities, leadership positions, social events, and a variety of philanthropic activities. Women of CPC are dedicated to leading well-balanced lives and making a positive impact on our Georgia Tech community.
Chapter Finances

Though financial commitment is necessary, joining a sorority comes with many benefits. Sorority housing generally costs less than on or off campus housing, and several of the initial fees are just one time fees. There are many opportunities within each chapter to find ways to help with the costs of being in a sorority. Collegiate Panhellenic Chapters give out approximately $5,000 in scholarships each year. Please be sure to ask each chapter on Day 2 of recruitment about fees as well as check out their websites. All costs below are approximate.

Tuesday, August 23: BID DAY!
5:30PM Potential members pick up their bids at the Student Center Ballroom and open them with their Pi Chi Groups.
What to expect...
During this day you will visit each of the seven chapters for 25 minutes. Conversations will be short and light-hearted. Make sure you tell the sisters about yourself, and feel free to ask questions about the sorority and Greek life in general. Maintain a positive outlook throughout all the parties, and do not set your mind on one chapter before Recruitment or during Round One. You will also view a presentation from our new NPC colony that will give you information about the newest sorority on campus. Keeping an open mind is the best way to ensure that you go to the house where you are happiest!

What to wear...
Day one dress is casual and comfortable. We will provide everyone with a recruitment t-shirt to wear that will be handed out at the kick-off ceremony on August 18th. Shorts should be worn with the t-shirt. You will be walking to many houses, so comfortable shoes such as sandals are a must.

Questions to ask yourself...
Would I like to get to know these women better? Did I feel welcome when I walked through the door? Were the members pleasant and friendly?

What to expect...
During this day you will visit six chapters. The second day of events is philanthropy day. Each party lasts 35 minutes. The chapters will introduce you to their philanthropy and all of the different things they do both on campus and nationally to further their causes. The atmosphere will be very relaxed; ask questions you might have about the philanthropy within the sorority as well as on campus. Today, you and the sisters should be able to know each other better. You may get a tour of the house on this day and financial information will be presented.

What to wear...
Skirts, nice shorts, or summer sundresses are recommended. You will be moving through the houses, so be sure to wear clothes that are comfortable and easy to move in. Comfortable sandals are appropriate footwear for Day Two as well.

Questions to ask yourself...
Do I feel comfortable with these women? Are they genuine? What can I gain from membership in this group and what can I contribute? Can I afford the financial commitment to this sorority?

What to expect...
During this day you will visit up to four chapters. The events are longer and more personal. You will watch a video, which is meant to tell you more about the chapter, and you may talk with people who you have previously met. The atmosphere is much more personal; ask any questions you might still have about the sorority and its members. Trust your feelings and begin thinking about which chapter you feel you would fit in best. Consider where you feel most comfortable, and do not rely on the opinions of others.

What to wear...
Outfits on Day Three are a little nicer than before. Skirts, dresses, or pant outfits that you might wear to a banquet or religious service are recommended. Sandals, flats or comfortable wedges are appropriate footwear. You will be doing some walking this day, so be sure to be comfortable.

Questions to ask yourself...
Am I still comfortable with the sisters I have met? Can I call these women my sisters? Do they stress the values that are important to me?

What to expect...
This round is called Preferential (Pref) because you will be attending up to two chapters and making the final decision about which sorority you would prefer. Each sorority has a different ritual or ceremony they will present, and the sisters will be telling you what their sorority means to them. Reflect back over the last few days, and ask any questions you may have. It may be difficult to choose between chapters, but remember what is most important to you and the values each chapter demonstrated. Consider all of your options and go where you will be most happy.

What to wear...
A nice dress that you would wear to a wedding or a similar special event would be appropriate. Semi-formal or formal (prom type) dresses are too dressy. You will only be visiting 1-2 houses, so you may wear comfortable heels if you want.

Questions to ask yourself...
What do I want in a sorority and are these qualities and values present in this chapter? Do I want these women to be my sisters?
If I go through Recruitment, am I obligated to join?
No, many women choose to go through Recruitment to meet people and make new friends. Recruitment is an opportunity for you to visit the sororities, get a glimpse of Greek life, and assess whether or not you would like to join the Greek community. You may choose to stop the process at any point.

What should I talk about during Recruitment events?
It is important to be yourself during Recruitment and let the conversation flow naturally. The sororities are presenting themselves to you just as you are presenting yourself to them. Ask questions so you can make comparisons and decisions.

During Day One you will mostly talk about yourself—what you were involved in during high school and your intended major. During Round Two, the sisters will be telling you about each chapter’s involvement in service and other events. Remember to keep asking questions during this round since you will have to be narrowing down your choices in the next round.

During Days Three and Four, conversations will become more serious. It is in these rounds that you want the sorority women to get to know you more. Remember to keep in mind what values are important to you as you are making your selections.

What should I expect my Recruitment days to be like?
Recruitment can be tiring both physically and emotionally. However, you decide how positive a recruitment experience you will have. Keeping a good attitude and an open mind are vital. Focus on sororities that are inviting you back rather than on any disappointment.

What if I’m shy?
Just be yourself! Every sorority wants members with a variety of personalities. Each member of a sorority contributes her own individual talents to the chapter. Keep in mind that it is up to you to present yourself to each sorority. Smile and feel free to talk. Sororities want to impress you as much as you want to impress them.

What if I have trouble choosing sororities?
Difficult decisions are common, but you should not look at this as a problem. Most women would be happy at more than one chapter on campus. Think about what each sorority has to offer you. A sorority should feel like a second home, a place where you feel totally comfortable and welcome. Your experiences at each event and your values should guide you to the groups that are right for you.

What is a bid?
A bid is an invitation to join a National Panhellenic Conference sorority. Bids are given out on the final day of Recruitment: Bid Day! You can only receive one bid and must choose to accept or deny that sorority’s invitation.

Important guidelines for PNMs
1. A PNM (Potential New Member) must be enrolled as a full-time student at Georgia Tech in good standing.
2. All PNMs must have registered and paid their Recruitment fees by 4:00pm on Thursday, August 18, 2016.
3. Each chapter has minimum GPA requirements for women with already established college GPAs: it is important to maintain your grades if you are participating in summer semester.
4. No women participating in FASET should reveal their affiliation to you during a FASET session. It is important for you as a PNM not to try to figure out your FASET Leader’s affiliation during the session.
5. Sorority women you did not know at the beginning of the summer should not attempt to contact you at any point during the summer or Formal Recruitment.

CPC has two associate member chapters, Alpha Delta Chi and Alpha Omega Epsilon. Associate member are not National Panhellenic Conference groups, but they are a part of Georgia Tech CPC. Associate chapter members enjoy similar events, programming, and socials as NPC sororities and participate in many CPC and Greek activities on campus.

Alpha Delta Chi is a national Christian sorority, and Alpha Omega Epsilon is a national social engineering and technical sciences sorority. While they do not fully participate in Formal Recruitment, both will be present on Day One and Day Three if you would like to learn more and meet their sisters. Alpha Delta Chi and Alpha Omega Epsilon will then conduct their own, separate Informal Recruitments during the second week of school.

Want to learn more? Attend the Associate Member Recruitment Kick-off Event!
Sunday, August 28th at 7:00 pm
Location: Student Center Theater (tentative)

Frequently Asked Questions

1. How is Informal Recruitment different than Formal Recruitment? It is a less-structured process that involves events and socials where you will be able to meet the members of the Associate Chapters. Examples of events include info sessions, game nights, professional nights, and ice cream socials. Just like formal recruitment, the process is about a week long and ends with a bid day, but the process itself is much more informal.

2. Who can participate in Informal Recruitment? Alpha Omega Epsilon accepts women who are engineering majors, as well as computational media, computer science, biochemistry, and chemistry majors. Alpha Delta Chi accepts Christian women of any major.

3. Do I have to sign up for Informal Recruitment? No! We do encourage anyone who is interested in the Associate Chapters’ Informal Recruitment Processes to attend the Associate Chapter Recruitment Kick-Off on Sunday, August 28th at 7:00pm.

4. What if I have a conflict and can’t make it to every Informal Recruitment event? Don’t worry, you can still participate! If you have a conflict, we encourage you to contact the Associate Chapters’ recruitment chair (contact information can be found on each of their chapters’ websites).

5. What is Associate Chapter Recruitment? Recruitment for both Associate Member Chapters will be held during the second week of school in the fall. Be sure to check the chapters’ Georgia Tech websites for exact dates, times and locations.

Accomplishments and Awards: We obtained the highest GPA both within CPC and all of the Alpha Delta Chi nationally last fall.

Our Council

Since its inception, MGC has served as an umbrella for culturally based Greek organizations on campus. Established in 2006, our council is the youngest of the four Greek Councils and is currently comprised of six unique organizations, which the council supports as they preserve the cultural diversity of the community. Our council not only helps its constituent members express their own diversity, but also acts as a venue for further understanding and appreciation of the culture of all individuals.

Our Diversity

The purpose of the MGC and each member organization is to educate the community about diversity and various cultures represented in today’s community. Our council motto is “Unity in Diversity,” because though our council consists of a spectrum of organizations, we pride ourselves on our ability to respect each individual and see one another as members of a large family.

What is IFC?
If you have visited Georgia Tech, you have most likely seen the houses around East Campus that are adorned with Greek letters. We also have three IFC fraternities that do not have a physical on-campus residence. The other eight Greek letter houses on campus are CPC sororities (see pg. 19 for more information).

IFC stands for Interfraternity Council, and as an organization it serves as an advocate and governing board for its 32 chapters at Georgia Tech. You can learn more about the details of this on our website at fraternity.gatech.edu.
The members of these 32 fraternities make up the membership of IFC, and they represent the largest population of students within the Georgia Tech Greek community by a substantial margin. These men are come from all across the country and some from across the globe to study all of the various academic programs GT has to offer.

What is Rush?
Rush is a week-long opportunity to learn about the Georgia Tech community and meet many of your fellow Ramblin Wrecks. You might already know you want to join a fraternity. You might have never even considered joining a fraternity at any point in your life. That’s OK.

There is absolutely no commitment involved in Rush Week. It’s very casual, and you can go at your own pace. You just show up to fraternity houses or events (after you have registered, see the next page for more information), eat free food, and talk to people.

Of course, with 32 chapters, there is a lot of variety in our Greek community at Georgia Tech, and when you find a fraternity that you like, and that fraternity likes you, a fraternity might give you a bid (which is an invitation to join their chapter).

Values

In general, the crucial difference between a fraternity and any other typical student organization is that fraternities are based on strong values. Whether our organizations are brand new or 125 years old, all of them find success in aligning their actions with their values.

Friendship

College represents an opportunity to make friends that you will have for the rest of your life. Whether or not you join, the Georgia Tech IFC community offers you an awesome opportunity to make new friends, both freshmen and upperclassmen, through the experience of Rush Week.

Academics

At Georgia Tech, the Greek community consistently maintains a higher GPA than the non-Greek community. For a breakdown of these statistics in detail, go to greek.gatech.edu.

Leadership

Fraternities offer both internal leadership opportunities because they themselves need strong leaders, but also external leadership opportunities. Greek men and women represent the vast majority of campus leadership positions. As such, Greek Life can sometimes be a springboard for other involvement opportunities on campus.

Philanthropy

The fraternal values of our community lead us to many philanthropic and service endeavors within the Georgia Tech and Atlanta community. Fraternities provide a great outlet to continue or build a passion for serving others and making a difference in the world.

Athletics

Fraternities compete against each other in fraternity-only leagues in intramural sports, but also compete against other groups, particularly in the playoffs. Most of the time, the competition is fierce, but more importantly, it is always fun and a great way to relieve stress.

No Hazing

Every fraternity has outlawed hazing in any form, and all have stated that hazing is contrary to the ideals of Fraternity. In the State of Georgia, hazing is a criminal offense. IFC and the Georgia Tech administration are unconditionally opposed to any situation created to produce mental and/or physical discomfort, embarrassment, harassment or ridicule.

Social Responsibility

During the week of rush, all fraternity houses and events are required to be free from any alcohol, and IFC patrols each chapter to ensure compliance with this rule. If you do join, you can look forward to a rewarding social life integrated with the culture and traditions of the Institute. IFC fraternity parties are regulated by clear and reasonable policies that keep our community safe.

Costs

New students are often worried about the monetary costs of fraternity. This is something you should discuss with each fraternity individually. Many times it is possible that joining a fraternity can lower costs over the course of your college tenure.

Fraternity Cost

This table is a breakdown of average Georgia Tech cost versus average fraternity costs for a student in their second-year, and beyond. As you can tell, on average, fraternity members’ costs are on par with Georgia Tech’s while enjoying the additional benefits of fraternity life!

Before You Start School

Summer Rush
If you are in or near the Atlanta area this summer, you may be invited to rush events by fraternities. This is a great way to get head start on Rush Week and start getting to know some fraternity men. Please note that these events should not involve alcohol in any way, and we encourage all potential new members to meet multiple fraternities before making a final decision about joining.

Required Registration
You are required to register for Rush Week online at fraternity.gatech.edu. It is completely free and it can only help you by giving fraternities a way to learn more about you and potentially contact you. There is no obligation to participate after you have registered, but is a great way to get information and updates about the process.

IFC at FASET
You can meet IFC and learn more about us and all of Georgia Tech Greek Life at FASET Orientation. Come to our “Greek Life 101” breakout session to get background information and helpful statistics. You will hear about GT Greek Life right from the source! Also, please visit our tables at the involvement fair and during class registration. This will give you the chance to meet us on a more individual basis and ask us more specific questions.

Tips for Rush Week
1) Keen an open mind. Many people that end up joining a fraternity did not plan on it before they came to college. Rush is a great opportunity to see if going Greek is a good fit for you.

2) Be yourself. The fraternity wants to get to know the real you; don’t feel overwhelmed if the they ask you a lot of questions. They want to get to know you as much as you want to get to know them.

3) Do your homework. Check out greek.gatech.edu, this Guide, and chapter websites. Being prepared for Rush will help you get the most out of it.

4) Don’t get discouraged. There are 32 chapters. If you haven’t found one you like, keep looking. You do not have to make a decision this week, or even this semester.

5) Use the narrow down approach. First, select 10-15 chapters through research and the Kick-Off tabling event. Then, visit between 5-10 chapters during the first two days of rush. In days three and four, invest more time with the ones you connect with most as you narrow down your final choices throughout the week.

Things to Remember
1) Download the rush mobile app via Guidebook at http://guidebook.com/guide/55970 The redemption code is qmdb7wv1

2) Register for rush at fraternity.gatech.edu.

3) There should be no alcohol present at any rush activities, on campus or off campus. If there is alcohol present, please notify the Office of Greek Affairs.

4) No fraternity endorses or condones any form of hazing. If you experience hazing, please notify the Office of Greek Affairs.

5) Not all our IFC fraternities have houses on campus. Rush Week is about meeting and getting to know people, regardless of where they live.

6) There are a lot of stereotypes out there about fraternities. Rush Week is your opportunity to meet Fraternity Men and determine your own opinion.
How does the bid process work?
A bid is an official invitation to join a fraternity as an associate member or pledge. A fraternity can give a bid at any time according to its policy. A fraternity will generally give you a bid if they feel you could be a good fit for their chapter. You may receive bids from many different fraternities and then decide where you fit best. Do not feel pressured into accepting the first bid you receive. You don't have to accept a bid if you don't feel a particular fraternity is right for you.

Do I have to become a brother if I accept my bid?
The pledge period is a time for you to get to know the fraternity and for the fraternity to get to know you. Both have the option of ending the pledge period at any time if the fit is no longer right.

Pledge periods vary in length, but are generally two to three months long. During that time, you will learn the history of the fraternity, get to know the brothers and other pledges, and participate in service projects, intramurals, socials, date nights, mixers, and other aspects of fraternity life.

What if I can't afford it?
It is important for you to make sure you can fulfill the financial obligations of pledgeship and being a member. However, being in a fraternity is usually cheaper than living on campus after your first year (information about finances are on page 47). Chapter presidents and treasurers are also generally willing to work out payment options for members. Talk to the fraternities you are interested in about how their dues work and how it can work into your budget.

Will I get hazed?
No fraternity pledge program involves hazing, and chapters face serious consequences for hazing pledges or brothers. IFC and Georgia Tech have developed strict guidelines to make the pledge process as safe as possible.

What should I wear to rush?
Rush is very informal, so wear whatever you feel comfortable in. Most chapters will be dressed in business casual — a collared shirt and khaki, but you aren't expected to wear anything special.
